

Niraj Mistry – Paediatrics Resident, The Hospital for Sick Children

Niraj Mistry is a third year paediatrics resident at The Hospital for Sick Children. Over the past few years he has developed an interest in the intersection between social media technologies and medicine, specifically in how patients and health care practitioners are using these technologies and how we can leverage them to change health outcomes. Starting in July, Niraj will be one of the Chief Residents and will then pursue an academic general paediatrics fellowship where he hopes to explore this further.
